

Dear FCC, What part of " Do Not Call List" has not been clear to you guys. We consumer simply do not want to be call. If we need something, then we will look for it. Obviously, if we are complaining is because we do not want to be bother. And, for sure telemarketers are not going to get anything from us. In what language do we have to say it or how do we need to say it? If a law suit is what they are looking for from us; telemarketere will get it. We are fed up about it. I personally will find the way to make their lives a living hell. An FYI: about 2.3 million people are are ready to go to court if we need to including my self. Enough is enough. If you do not do it, we will, and we are going to bring a law suit against you too. We are just ready for battle, and I say no more.
